

Gardeneering Camp 2010

Take an adventure this summer exploring plants, pollinators, and the dynamic ecosystem in which we live. Campers will learn about seeds and how to grow them, how plants produce energy through photosynthesis, garden games and maintenance, and ways to prepare nutritious organic snacks. Explore the world of worms, meet and eat amazing plants, and exercise your science skills. The Gardeneers will produce a beautiful garden for Oxford residents and its visitors to enjoy!

WHO: Children ages 6-12

WHAT: Children's Gardeneering Summer Camp 2010

WHEN: 9:30 am to 12:30 pm, Saturdays

Unit I - June 5, 19, 26th

Unit II—July 3, 10, 17th

Unit III—July 31, August 14, 21

September 12th Harvest Party (everyone come!)

WHERE: The Children's Garden at Oxford Community Arts Center

COST: $30 per Unit

Each unit is limited to 14 children. You may sign up for as many units as you wish. Substituting a Saturday in one unit for a Saturday in another unit may be possible in order to accommodate family schedules. Please arrange those changes with the Gardeneering Camp teaching staff.

Caroline Croswell will be guiding the campers through each unit this summer. Besides being the Executive Director of the Community Arts Center, Caroline is a master gardener and a total plant freak who has received numerous awards in horticulture. She will be assisted by student and garden club volunteers.

Visiting educators will also be part of this years program; with mini workshops in honeybees and other pollinators, how to attract songbirds to the garden, gourds as art and musical instruments and many other fun activities.

Thanks to Mary Keppler's hard work, the Gardeneering program is kid tested and aligned with the Ohio Academic Content Standards.

A limited number of scholarships are available. To receive a scholarship the child must write a paragraph or draw a picture explaining why he or she wants to attend camp and send or bring it in with the camp application.

The Children's Garden at OCAC is a collaboration between the Oxford Community Arts Center and Des Fleurs Garden Club.
